Labyrinthine Servers

The screams are a little more audible down here. When you close your eyes and listen carefully, you can almost feel their pain and fear inside your own body. The corridors in this strange facility twist and split in a multitude of unmarked directions—you could easily become lost and be stuck here for hours—but this must be the right place.

Chairman's Concerns

Chairman Hiro is pacing up and down the tanks full of clones, his brow furrowed. "Shouldn't they be calm now? That's what happened last time when the Tsunami hit, was it not?"

A man in a white lab coat walks half a step behind Hiro, gaze fixed on his PAD, frantically tapping at it. "Well, that is what happened last time, and in every case before as well: the volcano, the war, your—" He momentarily stops walking. "The... incident. The only reasonable conclusion has to be that the 23 seconds isn't the disaster they're reacting to. There's something even bigger coming."

Hiro comes to a stop in front of one of the tanks, watching the clone scream and hammer at the glass. "And have you managed to decipher what they're saying?"

"Yes... We think so, but... Well, we think they're saying, 'A new god approaches.' I've put out the usual feelers in NBN, but nothing so far on what that could mean."

"Very well. Thank you for your hard work. I suspect I may need to make a few calls."

Message Log

Hi Marcus,

First of all, congratulations on your promotion—I bet the runner never saw it coming. I hope we'll continue to work together for years to come.

This time I'm writing on behalf of the Saraswati team I manage. One of my team reported that he's noticed unauthorized updates to the conditioning script for three clone lines (Collins, Sato, Tanaka) over the past two months. After looking into it, it seems like this might be even more wide-reaching—there are parts of the Tenma and Kimura scripts I don't recognise but take these with a grain of salt: it's been a while since I've worked on them.

The problem is that searching our source control doesn't turn up who made these changes and when... Could you do me a favor and look into this? Quietly? I'll owe you one! Maybe the secret pancake recipe you love?

Thanks,
Izzy

Observation Data

Designation: Harmony Chorus
Clone line: Ibara

Gathers in a decentralized network of small groups of Ibara clones (4–6). Another of the Jinteki-as-creator movements, this time focused on Harmony Medtech and saving of human lives.

Recommendations: Deploy surveillance teams and ensure this does not expand too quickly and enter public attention. Revisit Ibara model conditioning to reduce inter-clone compliance.

Designation: Network Ascendents
Clone line: Sato

The leader, known as the "Harbinger", possesses a charismatic influence over the group, encouraging devotion to the network as the ultimate good work instead of to their owners.

Recommendations: Send offer to Vera Shuyskaya to refresh her Sato assistant. This should dissolve the clone cult.

Rambling Entry

Ada is making good progress. Answers are coherent, the right node clusters are lighting up when queries are thrown her way. I think we're reaching the local optimum of this combination of brain maps.

But every time, as she matures, random patches of the network start disappearing, for lack of a better way to put it. I know they used to be there but then the topology just changes and it's as if the addresses were never there. Almost like she's eating away at bits of the network. I've had to destroy and rebuild Ada multiple times. I know AIs can't break out of their containers, but... irrational, I know: I'm probably just being paranoid.
